The Cady Stanton-Anthony-Stone Faction Overthrown.

Vic Says "I Will Stump the States with Tennie C."

A Profound and Pragmatical Platform.

At last the great row between the two woman's rights factions, so long threatened and so often promised, has begun, and no one living may pro phesy where it will end.

For some time past a quarrel bas been brewing between the moderate and conservative wings of the female shrickers, led by Elizabeth Cady Stan ton, Susan B. Anthony, the impregnable; Lucretia Mott, the venerated, and Lucy Stone, the stainless, on one hand, and the rebels, led by Victoria Wood mil and Tennie C. Claffin, on the other side.
On the free love question the Woodhull is bold beyond precedent, and is fearless enough to speak er mind plainly in the faces of immense audiences, while on the other hand the "moderate" opposition who have been the leaders of this woman's movement from the beginning are fast learning that a dyke once opened cannot be so easily closed, and the torrent may possibly sweep them along in this new stamsede of the rank and file to the side of the Woodbull. It is even hinted that many of the most prominent among the dwindling Stanton-Anthony faction are secretly inclined to favor the free love doctrines, but dare not do so openly as they are unfortunately saddled with husbands, fathers and brothers who might kick at the further spread of this terrible heresy.

Apollo Hall, where the radical wing of the female shrickers met.yesterday, is situated at the corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth street, and is a large, well-ventilated and handsomely frescoed About six bundred delegates (male and female) had assembled at the bidding of The Woodhull to join a new "People's Party," and to nominate a President and Vice President, to be elected in November next, to rule this sorely-ridden nation. About three hundred and fifty of the delegates were women and the other two hundred and fifty be onged to the sex of the "horrid monster, man." Of the three hundred and finy women about three hundred and ten were more homely in the than as many nutmeg graters, while here and there a beautiful and fascinating creature, with serious countenance and wavy encased in Dolly Varden costume, walked through the aisles, the observed of all observers. The old faces that are usually attendant wemen's conventions did not show up on this occasion, and many strange locking people, with arge and healthy lunches on their knees, were observable in different parts of the hall. Who bere of the honors of the Conventi servable in different parts of the hall. The belie who bore of the honors of the Convention was a medium sized young lady, a delegate, with brown eyes, and dark chestnut hair, done np in thick braids, and wearing a heavy black silk dress. The victorious Woodhull, also attired in black silk, with an overskirt, and having at her throat a blue silk necktie, came in late in the day, with a smile on her lip, and her sister, Tennie C. Chain, similarly attired, on her arm. Wherever these two amorous went crowder of the Wherever these two amazons went crowds of the delegates clustered around them, and many ladies embraced and these days the Washington objects to kissing, and would not have it. On each side of the platform were blue silken banners, with following inscription blazoned in letters of

"Neither said any of them that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they said all things common. The Acts, iv., 32." The animous of the convention may be gathered The animous of the convention may be gathered from the inscriptions on large forked tail banners of a red color that hung around the sides of the hail, as follows:—"Government Protection and Provision from the Cradle to the Grave;" "The Unemployed Demand Work of Government;" "Naturalization of Land, Labor, Education and Insurance;" "The World Our Country, to do Good Our Religion;" "Equal Rights, Opportunities and Compensation;" "The Laws Must be Submitted to the People;" "Public Employment a Remedy for Strikes;" "Products of the Past Should be an Equal Inheritance to the Living Generation."

Banks the Internationalist, a tall, good-looking young fellow, with sharp eyes and a fine shock of hair; Judge Carter, of Ohio, and Judge Reymert, of New York, a second edition of George Francis Train, were two leading spirits in the Convention, and with Tennie C. Cladin (who made $350 in stocks, yesterday while the Convention was in session) "put up all the Jobs." A white-headed and white-bearded old fellow named Swackhouser tried to rise to the surface several times, but the Convention sat on him and squelched his shirling intellect shamefully. A man in a gray suit, with thin features and a fidgety body, named Coleman, from Philadelphia, who, whenever the speakers became pumped out, made it his business to run to the side of the tribune and expound Darwinian theories to the disgust of the audience and to his own extreme delight. The old man said that he had walked all the way from Topeka, Kansas, and "never skipped a tie." Every delegate had to pay his or her own expenses.

A very plain looking old lady named Martin ran upon the stage and cried out in a hysterical way:—"I vote that while we are waiting some one sings "Hail, Columby,"

The audience then sang the hymn in a very straggling way, several pretty girls in the gallery gigging at the eld maids below in the body of the hall and stuffing handkerchiefs in their mouths the while. Some inalicious delegate whispered that there was a person in the ball afflicted with smallpox., and considerable whispering ensued thereat A man in hodden gray, named Maddox, from "'way deown in Maine," was elected temporary chairman, and Mrs. Sarah Burton, of New York, and Mrs. Scodd, of Lynn, Mass, were nominated as secretaries. These two ladies were acknowledged as "belies" by all who saw them. One wore her hair in paris; the other had her hair cut down to within se inch of her life.

Mr. Maddox, of Maine, made an opening speech, apeaking from his chest like a barrei-organ.

Then a man named Orvis, from parts unknown, numped on his noble legs and cried out:—"What are we here for? That's what the Kunvenshin would like for to knaw!"

Mr. Maddon-Each del-e-gate will re-ceive a ticket, which will en-title him or her to a seat in the stall. Gat-ners will take back seats.

A young lady in the gallery again giggled and swallowed half of her handkerchief. A number of school cighten stroiled into the hall and gaped at the acriptural texts in sheer astonishment. The situation was becoming decidedly interesting.

A DELEGATE—I move you, sir, that a committee of two ke app-i-nted from each State and Terre-etory.

A RED-HEADED DELEGATE—I move as an amendement that the Cheer app-i-nt a committee of thirteen to constit in an inner room. The committee were as follows:—Mrs. C. H. Spear, Utah; Miss Nettie Pease, Hinois; A. C. Robinson, Massachnetts; C. Lewis, Ohio; T. B. Taylor, Kansas; F. Groker, S. G. Coleman, Pennsylvania; B. Lockwood, Washington; Seward Mitchell, Ellen M. Harris, Berjand; Francis Kingsman, Connecticut; D. Tabele, Vermont, and Mrs. Cuppy Smith, California.

About this time everybody in the hall feit that it

A PIEBALD PRESIDENCY was his or her duty to offer a motion or counter motion, and things began to be so inextricably confused that the Chairman lost his head.

A DELEGATE-II is said that we have an axe to grind in this Kunvenshin. It is not so. We come here in the interests of hew-manity and prr-o-gress.

Maddox, of Maine, the Chairman—God forbid that we should come here to grind our axes! We have no axes. We all have come here in the interests of hen-manity and pre-o-gress, as the gen-that we should come here to grind our axeal we have no axes. We all have come here in the interests of heu-manity and per o-gress, as the gentleman from Kansas says.

A long series of resolutions were then read with such catch words as "humanity," and "progress," "freedom," "the female sex," "down-trodden woman," "social life," "masculine tyranny," and so on. The resolutions concluded by recommending that a national ticket of "Human Rights" be nominated for President and Vice President of the United States. Resolutions accepted, but not adopted. A Professor Hume made a speech, and the Committee on Permanent Organization here reported for officers of the Convention the following persons:—For President, Mr. J. D. Reymert, of New York; First Vice President, Anna M. Middlebrock, of Connecticut; Second, J. F. Elliott, New York; Third, Isaac M. Frazer, Massachusetts; Fourth, Lavinia Dundne, Maryland; Pifth, J. M. Spear, California; for Treasurer, E. W. Briggs, of Missouri.

This report was unanimously adopted.

During the afternoon a rule was adopted, to allow ten minutes to each speaker, efter much contention among the delegates. A number of persons of both sexes availed themselves of this privilege, each speaker mounting the platform. Judge Rymert, of New York, accepted the permanent chairmanship in a brief and pertinent speech, parliamentary rules were not observed to any great extent, and questions ensued on points of order and privilege.

A white-bearded delegate named Swackhouser arose and said he had once voted, fer Fernando Wood, but that since then he had avoided both the republican and democratic parties. He would never again vote for a candidate who declared beforehand he would act as an honest man.

Mr. Henry Berny was the next speaker. He said he had gone to the Cinchnati Convention to the interests of Horace Greeley and they would achieve their object, otherwise they might fail in their great endeavors.

A little man with thin lips, a quivering voice, a baid head and bearing a resemblance to Captain Cuttle, arose and said that he had attended all the conventions called in the name of freedom for the last twenty years, and that invariably he had been shut up, choked off and trampled on until now. Now he was going to speak. In all these conventions he had tried to speak for a certain dewittendies and onnessed race.

when that poor, persecuted race will be heard to their own defence in every convention called to assert the broad principles of humanity and freedom.

Other addresses followed, and then Colones

The resolutions embodied in the platform were The resolutions embodied in the platform were accepted, but were not adopted by the Convention. It was agreed they should be left open for debate. A long discussion then ensued, and, after much confusion, an adjournment was had until half-past seven o'clock in the evening.

Evening Session.

At half-past seven o'clock the Convention reassembled. The hall was nearly filled, a great many eing strangers to the purposes of the Convention.
A motion was made that Victoria C. Woodhull be heard on the platform, which was unanimously

Mrs. Woodhull appeared in a neat black silk dress, blue tie, and looked extremely pretty. The lady who is perhaps destined to adorn the White House for the next four years as Chief Magistrate of the nation, and who will perhaps have the honor

House for the next four years as Chief Magistrate of the nation, and who will perhaps have the honor of sending telegraphic messages of congratulation through the cable to her sister sovereign, Queen Victoria, at Buckingham Palace, took as her subject, "Political, Social, Industrial and Educational Equity,"

Mrs. Woodhull spoke in substance as follows:—For the first time in the history of modern civilization do we see evidences that its own particular characteristics are at the verge of culmination. Individualization, not only of personnility, but of all by which it is surrounded, has been the ruling and the guiding spirit; and people have followed its commands, each in his or her own way, and upon special ideas and methods of discovery, until to-day many have arrived at the bottom of analysis—to perfect principles. And my soul swells within me as I stand before this mighty audience—mighty in intellect, wisdom and love—and I realize that it has congregated for the express purpose of laying these corner stones, which they have been so long fitting and squaring for this grand time. From this Convention will go forth a tide of revolution that shall sixep over the whole world. Let us be careful, then, that its fountain contains no subtle poison of selfishness or of expediency, which shall distil death. But what does freedom mean as applied to individuality? Why, just this (and it was never more forcibly, clearly or logically set forth than in the Declaration of Independence), the inalicnable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. To be free is to possess and exercise these rights. To be free is to possess and exercise these rights.

What is equality? It is that every person shall have the same opportunities to exercise have the same opportunities to exercise the inalienable rights belonging to the individual. And what justice? That the attenable rights belonging to individuals shall be jealously guarded against encroachment. It is because government is not confined to its proper sphere of securing the exercise of the inalienable rights of individuals, for which it was organized, deriving its just powers from the consent sphere of securing the exercise of the inalienable rights of individuals, for which it was organized, deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed, that we stand today on the verge of political anarchy. Go where we may in the land, there we see despotism, inequality and injustice installed where freedom, equality and injustice installed where freedom, equality and justice should be instead. That we are for once going to take you at your word, since, to help ourselves, is just what we are preparing to do. And I say we are right when we charge that the government has proven a failure. Verily may the words of the lowly Nazarene be applied to the social conditions of the age:—"Wo unto you, serbes, Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful without, but within are full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness: ye outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within are full of hypocrisy and injudity." It may be laid down as fundamental that every person on arriving at adult age is entitled to have had equal opportunities for secular, industrial and intellectual education. More than one-eighth of our entire population can neither read nor write. Five million two hundred and seventy thousand persons over the age of ten years are in this terrible condition—a fact sufficient in itself to condemn to everlasting infamy the principles upon which our civilization is based. But, says another, that would necessitate the substitution of a new constitution for that which now exists, since that will not permit of the reforms referred to, and that may mean revolution. Well, exists, since that will not permit of the reforms re-ferred to, and that may mean revolution. Well, and if it do mean revolution, what then? Shall we be slaves to escape revolution? I say, never! I say, away with such weak sinpidity! Such doctrine is, indeed, worthy the meanest slaves. I say, let us have justice, though the heavens full. The mere fact that this Convention may nominate candidates to contest the coming election is not in my estimation to be compared to that greater work proposed—the first, without the last would really mean swthing, while the last without the first would not amount to a movement; but both together, may mean a revolution that shall sweep, with resistless force, if not fury, over the whole country, to purge it of political trickery, despotic assumption and all industrial injustice, (Great cheering.)

Mr. Theo. Banks proposed that the platform be taken up and considered, section by section.

Judge Carter, of Ohio—The time for words has passed. We want action. We have reached the culmination of our theories, and have proclaimed our principles to the world. Our banner is unfarled. We want a standard bearer, and who so fit to represent us as he who has so nobly and so long stood by our cause? Without any more words I propose the name of Victoria C. Woodhull to be nominated President of the United States (tremendous reserring), and I call upon you to carry the metion by acclamation.

Then the whole audience rose and cheered wedferously, the men waved their hats, and the women shook their handkerchiefs, the uproor being so great that crowds rushed in from the street.

The Charman—I has been moved and seconded that Victoria C. Woodhull, now before you on the platform, be nominated President of the United States; all is favor of the motion will say aye (a torrent of grees), contrary, no (silence).

The CHARMAN—I now call upon you to ratify the motion by acchanation.

The audience again rose and cheered as if their lungs would break, when an alarming rumor ran around the rosen that Mrs. Woodhull had fainted on the platform from excess of emotion, but when Mrs. Woodhull was led forward by the chairman to respond, the appliause was again and again renewed. Flushed and heated with gratified pride, her bosom heaving and her voice trembling, she said:—I thank you from the bottom of my soul for the honor you have cenferred upon me to-night. I feel it all the more deeply as I have stood by you so long, sometimes meriting your appliause and sometimes encountering your rebuffs, but I have been always mithful to my principles, and without saying more I again thank you for the great honor you have shown me. (Immense appliause).

Judge Carters—We have nominated a President. We want a Vice President. Next to the woman I can point to no claes who have been so much oppressed as the negro. We want this Convention to proclaim equal rights to all, and, therefore, to make our platform complete, I present the name of Frederick Douglass, of Rochester, to you as Vice President of the United States. (Confusion, cries of "No, no," "Yes, yes," and great cheering.)

The Chairman endeavored to quet the disturbance but he was unsuccessful, and the noise was so great that it was impossible to count the vote. An excited gentleman arose in the centre of the room and asked the Convention was its enthusiasm not going away with its common sense, but his voice was drowned in the tunuit. When order had in some measure been restored "a gentleman from Oregon" shouted, "I propose Spotted Tail for Vice President. The Indians were here before the negroes came, and they have the priority of right." (Great laughter.)

The CHAIBMAN said:—"It is now getting late, the meeting will proceed to vote on the nominations. The name of Fred Douglass is first upon the list; all in his favor will say aye." More than two-thirds voting in the affirmative the Chairman declared the question carried amid cries for a "division," which he refused to grant.

Mrs. Hanson—If Mr. Douglass declines the honor, I move that a gentleman of color be nominated in his stead.

I move that a gentleman of color be nominated in his stead.

CHAIRMAN—What color? (Laughter.)

Mrs. HANSON—Black, of course.

A Voice—I nominate W. Pilips in the absence of Fred Douglass.

ANOTHER VOICE—Oh, humbug! He sin't a temperance man—he says there is no cure for drunkeness. The motion was laid upon the table for consideration to-day.

A lady Vice President of the meeting then came forward and said, "Let us organize for action. We want $200 before ten o'clock to-morrow morning. Will two ladies go through the audience and take up a collection?" Here three-fourths of the audience rose and a general rush was made for the audience rose and a general rush was made for the door, leaving only about three hundred persons in the hall, and this miserable minority did not seem to have any money. The strong-minded women on the platform looked pale, and their male coadjutors tried to smile, but the depression became so great that no further business could be transacted, and the great Human Rights Convention, the harbinger of a new revolution, adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

LADY REFORMERS ON THE ALERT.

How They Propose to Carry the Day-Greeley Not To Be Trusted-Ladies in Council. The second day's meeting of the National Women's Suffrage Association was held yesterday, morning and evening, in Steinway Hall. A numerous and attentive audience was in attendance.

At eleven o'clock Miss Susan B. Anthony called the meeting to order and introduced the business of the day. In an introductory speech she explained the platform of the association, and stated that in the forthcoming election she proposed to advocate no particular man or party, but any candidate who would pledge himself to support woman suffrage. It was time that women should be no longer treated as slaves or chattels, without a vote or an interest in government, and that they should be placed on a footing of perfect political equality with men. The amend ments of the constitution gave the franchise to all citizens, and surely women had as good a right to that title as the negroes. At present the rights of women were fraadulently withheld from them, but such a state of things could not exist much longer. Women must unite and make a grand stand for their rights as citizens of a free country. It would be useless at present for them to advocate any particular party. They must first enforce their right to vote, and then they could decide for whom to vote. At present they must give their firmest advocacy to the candidate who would support their rights, whatever his opinions in other respects might be. The association did not wish to put forward any woman as candidate for the Presidency; its object was first to assert the claims of all women, and for this cause they must sink all minor differences and make a united effort. Hitherto the hopes which had been formed in various quarters had met with nothing but disappointment. The Workingmen's Convention at Columbus ignored the rights of women to the suffrage. The Liberal Convention at Cincinnati was, if possible, worse, for Horace Greeley had for many years past thrown cold water and ridicule upon the movement. The Tribune was an enemy to woman's rights, and no true woman would advocate Greeley's candidature. They must now watch the course which the old line republicans would pursue at Philadelphia, and if they admitted the just claims of women they deserved the warmest support. Falling this, there was yet hope in the democrats at Baltimore. Women must not rest until they obtained the fullest recognition of their inalienable rights.

Miss Anthony was followed by Mesdames E. C. Stanton, J. B. Hooker, Laura De Force Gordon, A. J. Dunning, M. H. Brinkerhor and other ladjes, who made earnest appeals to the patriotism of their hearers, and in speeches of considerable ability advocated very warmly the ladies' cause. The resolutions proposed at the meeting of the preceding day were then passed and the following officers for the ments of the constitution gave the franchise to all citizens, and surely women had as good a right to

OBITUARY.

Frances Mary Upton.

The death on the 2d inst. of Frances Mary Upton wife of the late Richard Morris and daughter of the late Captain Francis Upton, of the British Navy, severs one more link with a generation fast passing away. Mrs. Morris was born in New York, October 18, 1794, and, losing her parents during her child-hood, she resided in the family of her maternal grandfather, Judge Johnston, at his estate, Linlithgow, Dutchess county, until her marriage with Richard Morris, of Otsego county. Her husband founded a residence on a tract of land, of which she was co-heiress with her sister, containing upwards of twenty thousand acres and forming the boundary line between Otsego and Chenango counties for about twenty miles. It was held under what was known as the Upton patent, a grant from the British Crown to her ancestor. Lord Templetown, and adjoining the Morris patent granted to her husband's grandfather, Lewis Morris, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, for services rendered during the Revelution. Possessing rare culture and accomplishments and great conversational powers, Mrs. Morris lived a secluded life in her beautiful country home, dispensing an elegant hospitality and unobtrusive charities. Her remains were placed beside those of her husband and son, in the family cemetary, Morris, Otsego country, and an impressive sermon was delivered by her relative and pastor, the Rev. Samuel Rosevelt Johnson, D. D., in the Morris Memorial Church of All Saints. grandfather, Judge Johnston, at his estate, Linlith-

SCARCITY OF VESSELS.—The Alexandria (Va) Gazette says:—There is a great want of vessels here for the coal trade. Black diamonds are rapidly accumulating upon the wharves for want of transportation. the wharves for want of transportation.

SHIPBILDING—At Addison, Capt L A Knowles has commenced work of a vessel of 500 tons. The Messrs Look intend to begin work soon on a schoener of 200 tons. Business is brisk in the shipyards at Harrington, Me. A large amount of tognage will be built this season.

Sewall Fessenden and others, of Sandwich, are having built in Bath a three-insted schoener of 450 tons burthen, to be commanded by Capt J E Hathaway, to run between Georgetown, DC, and Cohasset Narrows, in the coal trade.

Notice to Mariners.

DARDANELLES.

Alteration in position and in lights of coast guard ves Alteratiou in position and in lights of coast guard vessel:

The Turkish government has given notice that the vessel to which all merchant ships passing the Dardanelles have to deliver their firman has been moved from Galata Bournou, and is now moored near the opposite shore at Lampsaco. The vessel is painted yellow, and at night, instead of three lights placed vertically, as heretofore, exhibits a red light at the mast and a white light at both ends of a horizontal yard.

(All bearings are magnetic. Variation 12 degrees westerly in 1872.)

This notice affects the following British Admiraity
Charts: Gibraitar to Zaffarin Islands, No 2717, and Dardanelles, No 2429; US Hydrographic Office Charts No 281,
